With light rain expected Monday and moderate rain forecast for Tuesday and Wednesday an additional 2 to 3 inches are possible across much of South Central Texas through the day on Wednesday. Isolated totals up to 4 inches are possible. This rain falling on already saturated ground could lead to renewed river flooding issues and minor flash flooding issues.

Heavy Rain Threat Returns Wednesday

Multiple Factors Come Into Play

Weather Forecast Office
Austin/San Antonio

Issued October 22, 2018 3:06 AM CT

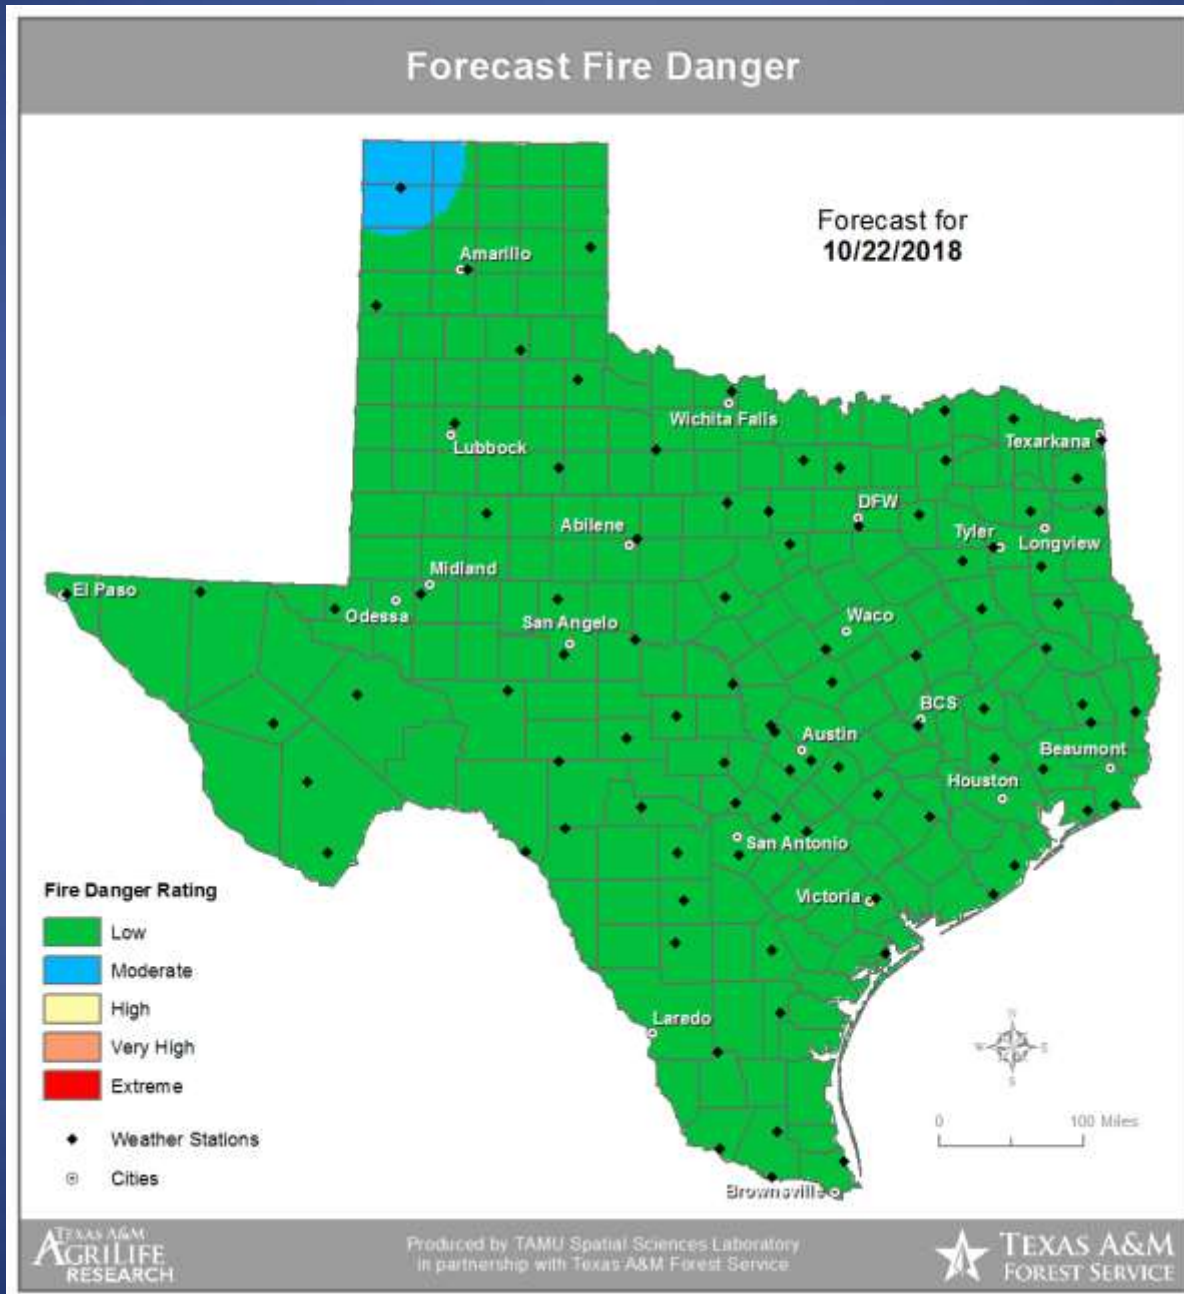

Several factors will come together to bring rain back to South Central Texas Monday through Wednesday. The best chances for moderate to heavy rainfall look to be on Wednesday. With how saturated the ground is even just a few inches of rainfall could lead to new and/or renewed river flooding and some minor street/road flooding.
